Term Assignment for OTED 885 Students

If you have never developed a course, you may choose to do the OTED 785 assignment. If you have previously taken OTED 785 or have formally planned a curriculum or designed a course, then you should do the following:

This is a two-phased project that requires you to:

Phase 1: Analyze (evaluate) an organization’s total curriculum of occupational offerings (catalog of courses) and develop a list of courses that need to be added, changed, or deleted. Prepare a matrix that lists the course and then the rationale for your recommendation for a new course, a changed course, or removing the course (10%).

Phase 2: Plan a catalog of occupational courses for an organization or school division. The project should include the following:

- Course Title (and number is applicable)
- Course description
- Rationale for the course

NOTE:

This should be a significant effort for an organization that has a catalog of at least 15-20 courses or it could be a school division with a comprehensive career and technical education (CTE) program. In large school divisions that have significant CTE programs, the project may be confined to one program area such as Technology Education, Trade and Industry, or Business and Marketing. Those in a community college may limit their analysis to their department's offerings. Virginia educators should review the state's program offerings on VERSO: http://www.cteresource.org/
